The unhappy prince

Once upon a time, there was a prince. He lived in a beautiful palace. His father was the king. The king was very rich and had a lot of servants.

But the prince was unhappy. He looked at the children playing in the fields outside the palace. He wanted to play with them, but he couldn't. Because he was a prince and he couldn't leave the palace.

He was bored because the servants did everything for him. The servants were older than him, so he couldn't play with them.

The happy prince.

One day, there was a terrible earthquake. The palace fell down. The king lost everything.

The king couldn't pay his servants, so they went to work in other palaces. The king and his family went to live in a forest near a river.

They had to build their house with wood from the trees, drink water from the river, eat fruit from the forest and grow vegetables in the fields. They didn't have any servants to help them.

The prince was poor, but he was very happy because he could swim in the river, play in the fields and climb trees in the forest. He had a lot of friends in the nearby villages.
